

The Psalms of Ascent

Psalm 131

Introduction

We assume that if we achieve certain things in our life, we will find _____

Each time our brain experiences a " _____ ", it moves the _____

The theme of Psalm 131 is _____

The song today is a reflection of David's heart and it reveals something about three states of people on the journey to find true _____

The Pursuits of the _____

- David affirmed three things upon _____ before God
- _____ is the oldest sin in the book
- Our culture encourages and rewards _____ without _____
- There is a distinct difference between _____ to be the person that God has made us to be and being _____
- By rejecting God's command over us, we reject His authority and decide that we, not He, will rule our lives

The Calmness of the _____

If we aspire to anything in life let it be to these two things:

(1) Be _____ (2) Be _____

We are to be _____-like and not _____

We will never be content until we find our _____ in the Lord

Instead of being _____ and _____ before God, childish followers are constantly giving God the solution to their problem

Intentionally walking in close fellowship with Jesus, we will find a quiet peace to our _____ and _____ souls

The Expectancy of the _____ _____ isn't just an emotion but an essential life tool

The Hebrew term for _____ means literally, to "wait for" but especially to "wait expectantly"

The Lord has allowed us to exist in this time of eternity so that He can _____ us through our struggles, not be _____ by them

The one who looks to God and to the ways of God for life's _____ will not be _____